Training
Freechild Institute travels around the world to facilitate learning activities for young people and adults focused on changing the world. We offer highly engaging, interactive and powerful workshops, keynotes and retreats using hands-on, interactive and practical activities that address a number of issues.

Tools
People who are ready to make change in the world can find skill-building, idea-making, knowledge-sharing and more tools from Freechild. Each of our toolkits and guides highlights different information on how to change the world.

Technical Assistance
Freechild uses our experience and research to consult organizations on youth engagement. We serve many kinds of organizations as they transform youth services, the education system, foster civic engagement, and more.

About Freechild
The Freechild Institute provides training, tools and technical assistance to support youth engagement in social change. Since 2001, we have partnered with more than 500 organizations in 1,500 communities affecting 1.5 million young people around the world.

What Matters Most
Working with K-12 schools, nonprofits, government agencies and others, we support, research, advocate, educate and promote youth engagement. Through direct connections with youth and adults, we examine best practices, current thinking and practical innovations to foster youth engagement. With partners, we consult on organizational development, program design and cultural transformation. Our website is a virtual database of examples, tools and other resources that inform, inspire and uplift the movement for youth engagement worldwide.
